The Examiner has carefully considered the independent claims 1, 47, 52, and 64. The computer method for communicating between users as claimed was not taught or suggested by the prior art. Using images in communicate between users are known in the art as taught by Megiddo and Liles. However, images in Megiddo and Lilies teachings are generic images. None of the prior art teaches "characterizing a source of a product or service offered" by the owner of the image as cited in the claims. Furthermore, none of the prior art of record teaches limitations "configured to allow various....actual physical interaction between the first and the second users" (claims 1, 47, 52, 64) and "moving one of said images ....said users for talking" (claim 52). These limitations, cited in specific combination as presented in the claims, define patentably over relevant prior art made of record.
